There are many other differences apparent in the shields of great and ancient families. The Scotch Sutherlands, in one branch, bear gu., three stars or (there is considerable diversity of opinion among heralds as to whether these charges were intended for stars or mullets). The Sutherlands of Forse, to. Caithness, bear, gu., three mullets or, within a bordure wavy of the last. (Gu. rendered in black for relief). A most striking example of differencing (a difference really of augmentation by the addition of charges) is to be found in the shield of Admiral Sir Isaac Coffin who bore, az., semee of crosses crosslet or, two batons in saltire encircled with laurel branches of the second, between three plates. These arms were granted by the king in grateful recognition of the Admiral s services in the English Navy. The Admiral, however, was justly entitled to the arms of the distinguished family to which he belonged, although not by any authority of the College of Arms, for there is no proper record of the right of the Coffins, American or English, to the arms of their ancestors. Hence, one of the most remarkable instances of negation connected with armor-bearing is demonstrated in the Admiral s case. The College of Arms, in other words, could not grant him the arms of his ancestors without altering them by a radical difference. It is a fact that there is no American family which is...
